GREEK GOLD

CELTIC ENGLAND

1. Atreates & Regni. Tincommius. 20BC-5AD. AV Quarter Stater. (1.16 gms.). TINC on raised tablet, C above. Medusa head facing. Seaby 89. Mack 97. VF. Rare and seldom offered. (650-800)

LYDIAN KINGDOM

12. Sardes. Croesus. 560-546 BC. AV Sixth Stater. (1.76 gms.). Heavy weight standard. Forepart of lion right confronting forepart of bull left. Oblong incuse divided by two punches. Cf. Rosen 661. Good Fine. Rare denomination and weight standard. (1300-1500)

13. Sardes. Croesus and later. 550-500 BC. AV Stater. (8.03 gms.). Light weight system. Forepart of lion right confronting forepart of bull left. Two square incuse punches. Kraay-ACGC 78. Superb and as struck. Rare. (7500-8000)

It is a matter of controversy at this time whether the light series begins before the deposition of Croesus. The style of this coin would indicate that it is early in the series.

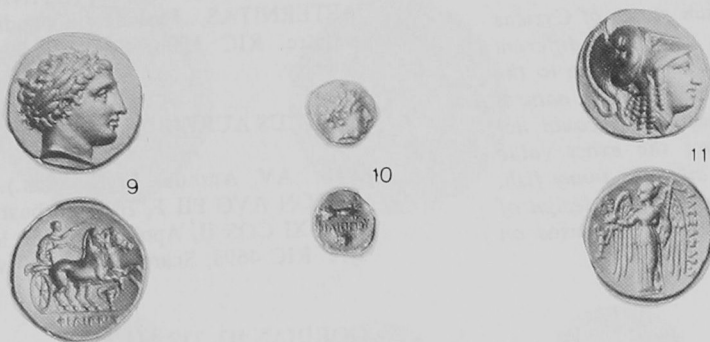

ASIA MINOR

14. Uncertain mint. 7th-6th BC. EL 96th Stater. (0.16 gms.). Phocaeic Standard. Lion's head right. Incuse punch. Rosen 348. (This coin). Choice XF. (250-300)

IONIA

15. Phokaia. 477-388 BC. EL Hecte. (2.47 gms.). Head of Hermes left wearing Petasos. Quadripartite incuse. Bodensstedt 82. VF, nicely centered. (550-700)

18. Cyzicus. 460-400 BC. EL Stater. (15.94 gms.). Nude, beardless warrior kneeling right, holding arrow in right hand and bow in left, wearing crested Corinthian helmet, to left tunny downwards. Irregular incuse punch. Boston 1490, Weber 5001. Nice VF+. Better centered than the Boston or Weber specimen. Rare. (12000-13000)

This interesting and artistic electrum stater of Cyzicus emphasizes the point that electrum coins had different values assigned to them at different times - due to the value of the gold and silver that make up the natural alloy electrum. Since the exact composition could not be exactly determined and therefore the exact value could not be set, the badge of the city, the tunny fish, guaranteed value. This aesthetically pleasing design of a warrior (Ajax?) is one of the many designs used on this varied series.

LESBOS

19. Mytilene. 521-478 BC. EL Hecte. (2.54 gms.). Lion's head right. Incuse calf's head right. Bodenstedt 13 (Dies m/q). Good VF. Nicely centered. (850-900)

EGYPT

21. Kings of: Ptolemy IV. 221-204 BC. AV Octadrachm. (27.91 gms.). Dated 211 BC. Head of Arsinoe II right, veiled and wearing stephane, to left A, border of dots around. Double cornucopiae with fillet, ΑΡΣΙΝΟΝΣ ΦΙΛΑΔΕΛΦΟΥ around. Svoronos 1165, SNG Burton Berry 1489 (This coin). Superb XF. Rare and seldom offered. (12500-14000)

This coin illustrates an important aspect of religious culture in ancient Egypt. The Ptolemaic dynasty combined the Hellenistic concept of the divine ruler with the native Egyptian belief of a "Pharaoh-God". The Pharaoh represented the fertility of the Nile valley and hence he was responsible for its fate. It was necessary to worship the pharaoh and his "divine predecessors". A cult was established for the worship of Arsinoe II as is indicated by the continued use of her portrait on octadrachms after her death. The fertility of the Nile valley is directly correlated to the iconography of this coin. The ram's horn, worn by Arsinoe, is derived from an Egyptian god of childbirth, while the cornucopiae is an obvious symbol of fertility.

MAXIMINUS II. 311-313 AD.

26. AV Aureus. (5.27 gms.). Alexandria mint. MAXIMINVS PF AVG, laureate bust right. SOLI INVICTO, Sol, radiate, standing left in long robe, holding head of Serapis, below ALE. RIC 132. Rarity 3. Near XF/XF. Rare and seldom offered for sale. (9000-10000)

Aurei of Maximinus II from the Alexandrian mint are quite rare, as is all gold from this time period at this mint, owing to the fact that "the main burden of production moved northwards (i.e. Antioch) as Maximinus prepared to oppose Licinius." In the battle Tzirallum, near Heraclaea, Maximinus was defeated and his authority ceased from that date (April 30, 313). This coin was issued 1675 years ago almost to the date of this auction. The reverse type of Sol holding the head of Serapis is artistically engraved and is very appropriate for a coin of the Alexandria mint. The reverse employs major divinities of Egypt and Rome.

This coin is historically important as it marks Justinian's innovation of placing his own portrait on the reverse of the coin and Christ's portrait on the obverse. This portrait of Christ is considered to be one of the most beautiful renditions of Him on a coin, and as such is a turning point in Byzantine numismatics.

This coin introduces yet another artistically important portrait of Christ. It is the only representation of a "lifelike" portrait of Christ on Byzantine coinage and is probably derived from a famous icon. Another historically important coin for the specialist.

52. AV Solidus. (4.47 gms.). dN IhS ChS REX REGNANTIVM, Bust of Christ facing, holding Book of Gospels and raising hand in benediction. (DN IVSTINIANVS) ET TIBERIVS PP A, Facing busts of Justinian II and Tiberius. SB 1415, D.O. 2b. XF, dirty and from a recent find. Rare. (1250-1450)

It is a matter of debate in regard to the Carthaginian dekadrachms as to the meaning of the Punic legend B'RST. Once thought to represent the Greek name for the citadel of Carthage, "Byrsa", others have derived the name from a Semetic word meaning "fortified place." Recently scholars have repudiated these meanings and instead suggest a translation of "in the land" for B'RST, "possibly a reference to the Carthaginian prefectures in North Africa". G.K. Jenkins suggests that possibly Punic Sicily was organized as a Carthaginian district and hence regarded as part of Carthage. This would also explain the choice of Pegasus as a reverse type since other coins bearing Pegasus, did circulate in Sicily, such as Corinthian staters and local issues reflecting Corinthian types.

John N. Kroll in his article "From Wappenmunzen to Gorgoneion to Owls" (ANSMN 26, 1981) suggests that types used in "wappenmunzen" may allude to the personal badges or names of the "wappenmunzen" magistrates that issued these coins. "Not knowing the names of the Wappenmunzen magistrates, we can only speculate on the possible motives that governed the selection of their devices." "Some of the Wappenmunzen types conceivably contain allusions to personal names, certain of the horse types, for instance, representing magistrates whose names began in "Hipp-". (One immediately thinks of Peisistratus' sons Hipparchus and Hippias, one or both of whom might well have served as moneyers under their father if not after his death.)". In any case, this represents a rare opportunity to acquire one of these elusive "Wappenmunzen" types.

137. Athens. c. 510 BC. Tetradrachm. (16.47 gms.). Head of Athena right, wearing crested Athenian helmet. AΘE before owl standing right, olive sprig behind, all in shallow incuse. Seltman 246. Owl standing right, head facing, olive sprig behind, (A)ΘE before. Seltman Group F, Svoronos Pl. II, 34. Choice XF, great style and execution for this late archaic issue. Metal slightly porous. An important rarity. (7000-10000)

This archaic tetradrachm of Athens is an "archaic" coin in an "archaistic" series of coins. (Archaistic meaning that the long series of "Athenian owls" were produced in a rather outdated style so as not to "startle" the users of the coinage who would not like any rapid change in appearance). "The principal characteristic of the archaic style is its gradual progress from a linear and geometric rendering of forms towards the relatively naturalistic style of the 'classical period.'" This coin with its zigzag chevrons and dots is definitely "linear and geometric" in style and as such, is one of the later issues in the archaic series of owls. To anthropomorphize this coin, it has "great charisma", and is sure to attract competition.

142. Athens. Emergency Issue of 406 BC. AR Tetradrachm-Fourre. (16.89 gms.). Helmeted head of Athena right. Owl standing right, olive sprig and crescent behind, AΘE before. Starr pl. XXIII, 12 (This coin). Near XF for this rare emergency issue. Possibly one of the best surviving examples of this coin. (1000-1500)

The emergency coinage of 406 BC in Athens became necessary after the Athenian disaster against Syracuse in 413 BC. The Athenian economy, which was based on dues paid by subject allies (who revolted one after another) and the silver produced by the mines at Laureion, was in chaos. The dues were being withheld and Sparta was disrupting the supplies from Laureion, hence the war reserves put away by Pericles (1.5 million tetradrachms) in 431 BC were needed and released in 412 BC. After another defeat at sea it was necessary to equip a new fleet, but there was no reserve left. In 406 BC the decision was made to issue a new emergency coinage issue. It was to consist of two types of coin. The bulk was to be provided by copper coins plated with silver and intended to pass at the same value as existing tetradrachms and drachms; these were to be backed by a limited issue of gold coins. Unfortunately, Athens soon lost the last battle of the war and her collapse was complete, but not without having introduced an important numismatic legacy.

143. Athens. After 393 BC. Tetradrachm. (17.18 gms.). Head of Athena right wearing crested helmet ornamented with three olive leaves and floral scroll. Owl standing right, head facing, AΘE before, crescent and olive branch behind. Svoronos pl 20, 31. Choice XF. Exceptional quality for this late issue. (450-500)

Cleopatra was the last queen and ruler of Ptolemaic Egypt. Her beauty (?) and charisma were such that she is credited with having been the mistress of both Caesar and Antony. This coin testifies to the veracity of her liason with Antony. Antony left Augustus' sister Octavia for Cleopatra, hence cementing the animosity of Augustus. Antony declared war on Augustus but was completely defeated at the battle of Actium in 31 BC. Antony killed himself at Alexandria in 30 BC as did Cleopatra a short time later. Such is the fate of "star-crossed lovers."

The reverse type on this coin alludes to the supposed descent of the Pomponii gens from Pompo, son of Numa Pompilius. After the death of Romulus, Numa was elected to the throne of Rome. Noted for his justice and piety, he is credited with being the "original author of the Roman coinage". Numa instituted the Vestals, as a body of virgins, to preserve the "sacred fire", and divided the year into twelve months.

This moneyer's family traced its descent from the Sabines, a people of ancient Italy, and also, perhaps, from King Tatus of the Sabine people. Tatus fought Rome and proved to be a formidable opponent. He was able to enter Rome itself and, might have destroyed it; if the Sabine women, whom the Romans had earlier carried off (rape of the Sabine Women), had not intervened and consummated peace. Romulus shared the functions of royalty with Tatus but eventually Tatus was assassinated without a successor.

Sent by Nero to Judaea, this legionary commander's task was to suppress the Revolt of the Jews against their Roman overlords. By 68 AD, Vespasian had suppressed and claimed victory over all of Judaea, with the exception of Jerusalem and several small fortresses. Upon the death of Nero, he was proclaimed Emperor and returned to Rome. Shortly after his return, he sent Titus to finish his chores in Judaea. Judaea was a constant thorn in the Romans' side. This coin is one of the many issued to constantly remind the public of the successes of the Legions of Rome - a great propoganda campaign designed to maintain peace within the ever expanding borders of the empire.

A masterpiece of Roman propaganda. In 209 AD. Caracalla's father Septimius Severus had gone to England with Caracalla and Geta at his side to defend the northern front of the Empire from the invading Caledonians. At the expense of over fifty thousand men and two years of time, Caracalla, upon the 'death' of his father, hastily concluded a peace with the Caledonians. He and Geta returned to Rome 'victorious' over their northern enemies. This magnificent coin celebrates these victories.

RIC 128 variant. Possibly unpublished with this fantastic reverse design. XF. Nice green patina. Very Rare. (800-1200)

"Adlectus" - the chosen one, companion to Carausius created this unusual denomination. This quinarius with a galley can also have Victory standing on the galley, a bird on the mast, or Neptune seated on the galley. Now we have another type to add - a stag's head. Though little is written about this time period - the allusion drawn by this coin is fascinating. Perhaps the stag's head was the badge of Allectus.

Constantine - did he really convert to Christianity? Niebuhr on his "belief": - "The religion which he had in his head must have been a strange compound indeed. The man who had on his coins ... SOL INVICTVS, who worshipped pagan divinities, consulted haruspices ... and on the other hand, built churches, shut pagan temples ... was certainly not a Christian. He did not allow himself to be baptized till the last moments of his life."
